

Treasury of Illustrated Classics™

Page after page of scenes
to color!

The Wizard of Oz

GIANT COLORING BOOK

Digitized by the Internet Archive in 2023 with funding from
No Sponsor

<https://archive.org/details/wizardofozgiantc0000unkn>

Treasury of Illustrated Classics™

The Wizard of Oz

GIANT COLORING BOOK

©2003, 2004, 2005 Modern Publishing, a division of Unisystems, Inc.

™Treasury of Illustrated Classics is a registered trademark of Modern Publishing, a division of Unisystems, Inc.

Published by Modern Publishing, a division of Unisystems, Inc.

®Honey Bear Books is a trademark owned by Honey Bear Productions, Inc., and is registered in the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office. No part of this book may be reproduced or copied in any form without written permission from the publisher. All Rights Reserved.

Modern Publishing
A Division of Unisystems, Inc.
New York, New York 10022

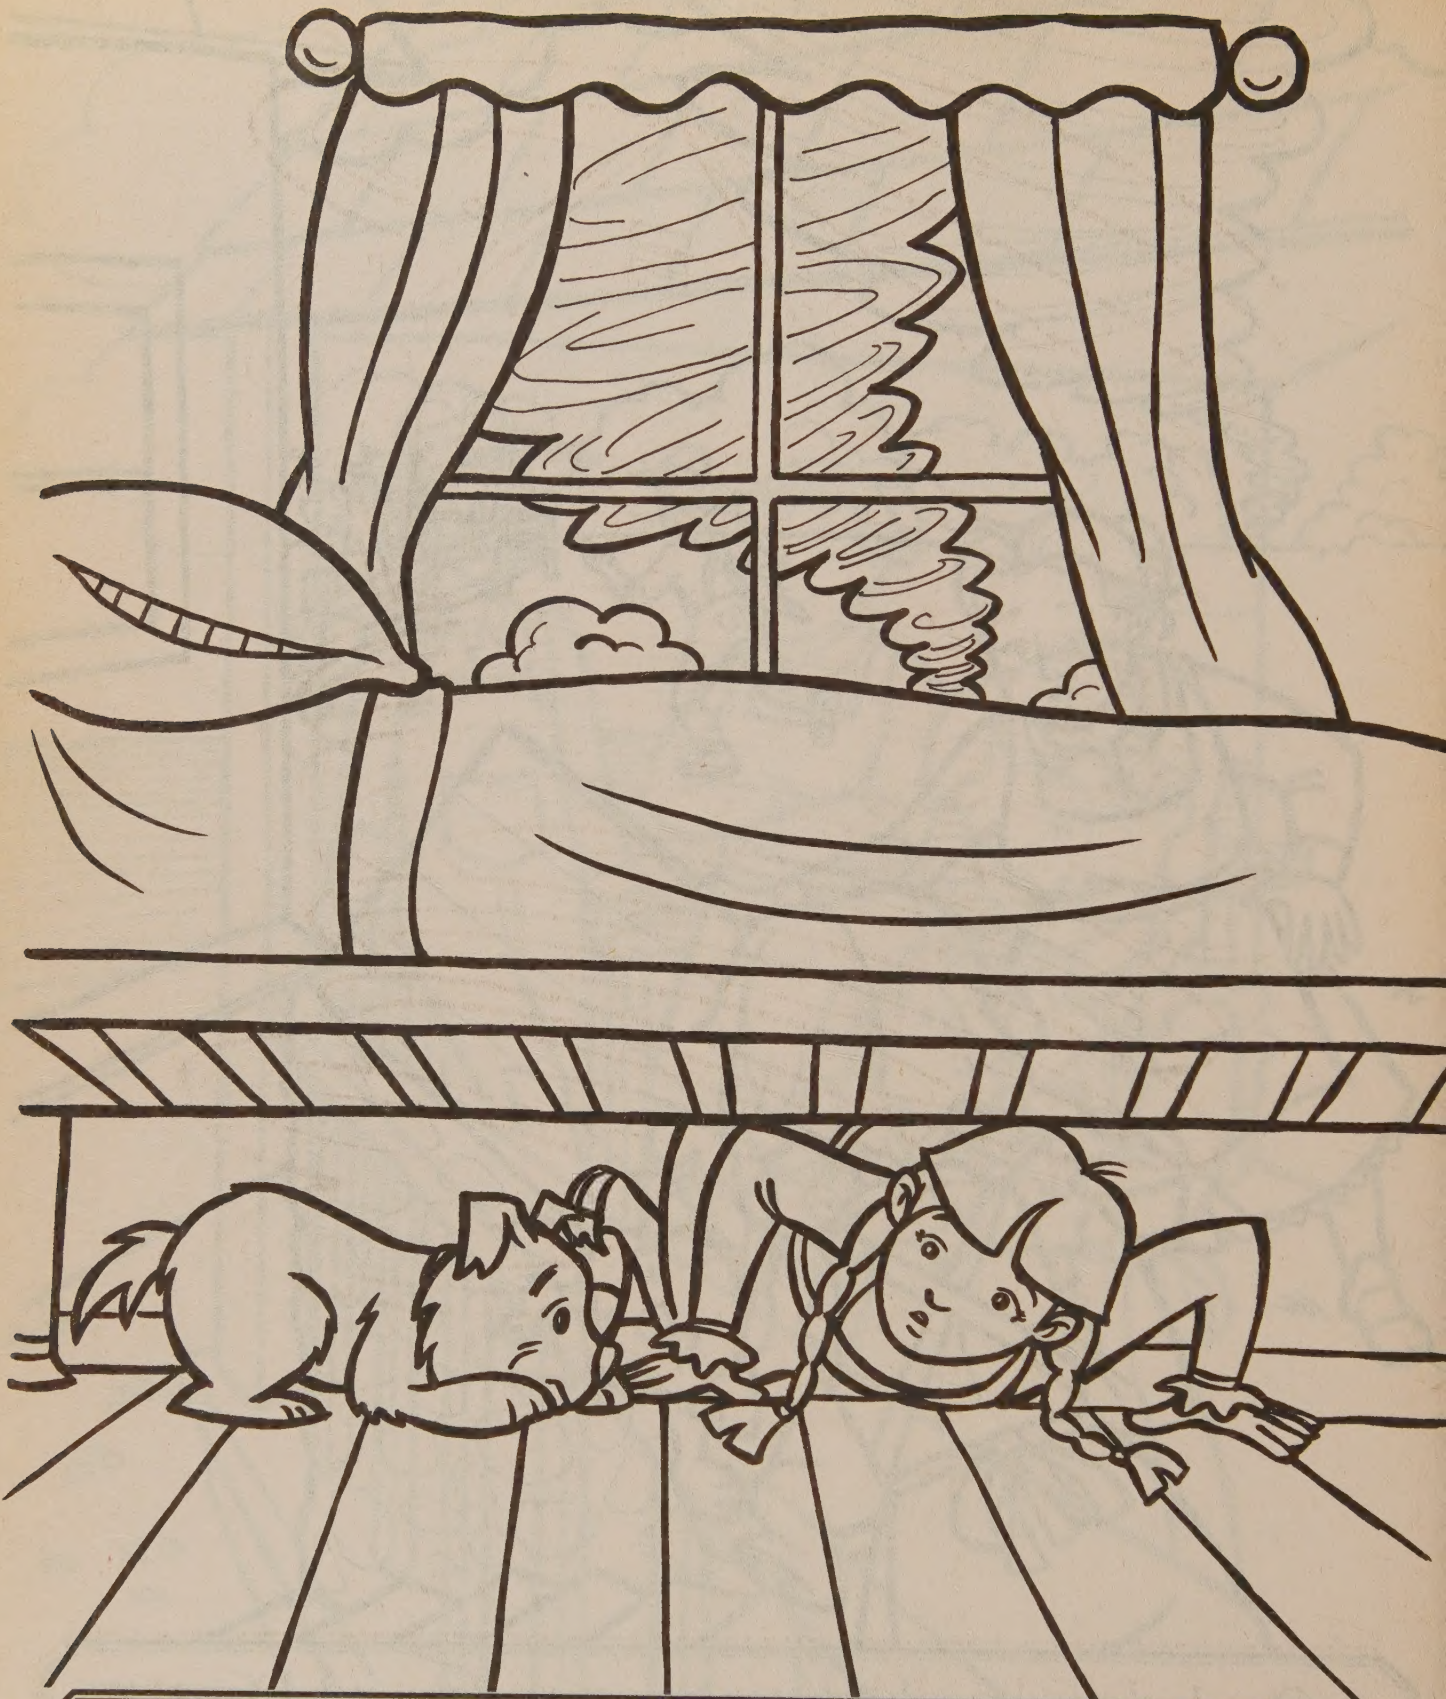

Printed in the U.S.A.
Series UPC: 49330

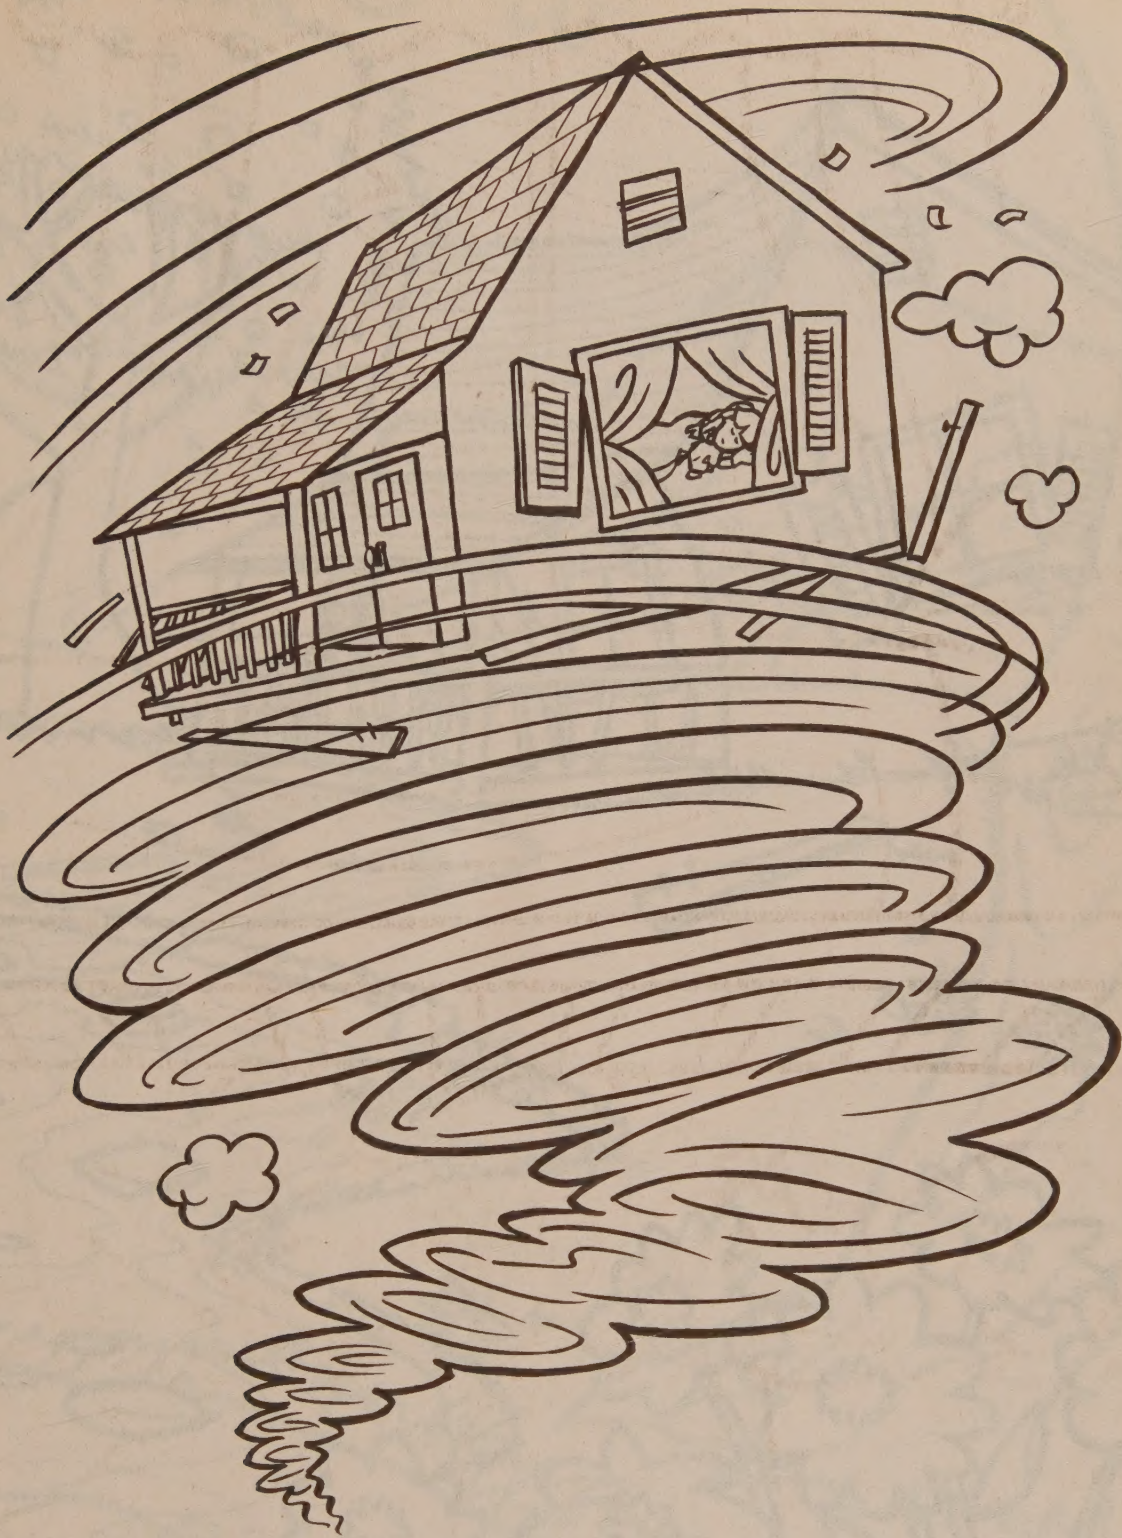

Dorothy lived on a farm in Kansas. She lived with her Aunt Em and Uncle Henry, and her dog Toto.

One hot summer day, a cyclone passed over the farm. Uncle Henry ran to help the animals. Aunt Em, Dorothy, and Toto went to the cellar for shelter.

Toto was frightened. He jumped out of Dorothy's arms.
Dorothy ran into the house to find him.

The cyclone lifted the house from the ground. Dorothy and Toto were very scared and tired. Soon they fell fast asleep.

After many hours, the house crashed to the ground.

When Dorothy opened the door, she saw a pretty countryside with a river running through it.

A little old woman, known as the Good Witch of the North, said, "Welcome to the land of the Munchkins."

“There are four witches in the Land of Oz,” she added.
“The witches of the north and south are good. The witches of the east and west are wicked. Now one is gone.”

"The Wicked Witch of the East does not need her silver shoes anymore. They are yours now," the Good Witch of the North said to Dorothy.

Dorothy asked how to get to Kansas. No one knew the way. The Good Witch's cap turned into a chalkboard. It had a message for Dorothy.

The Good Witch said that a great wizard lived in Oz. "Follow the road paved with yellow bricks," the Good Witch said. "Oz may be able to help you."

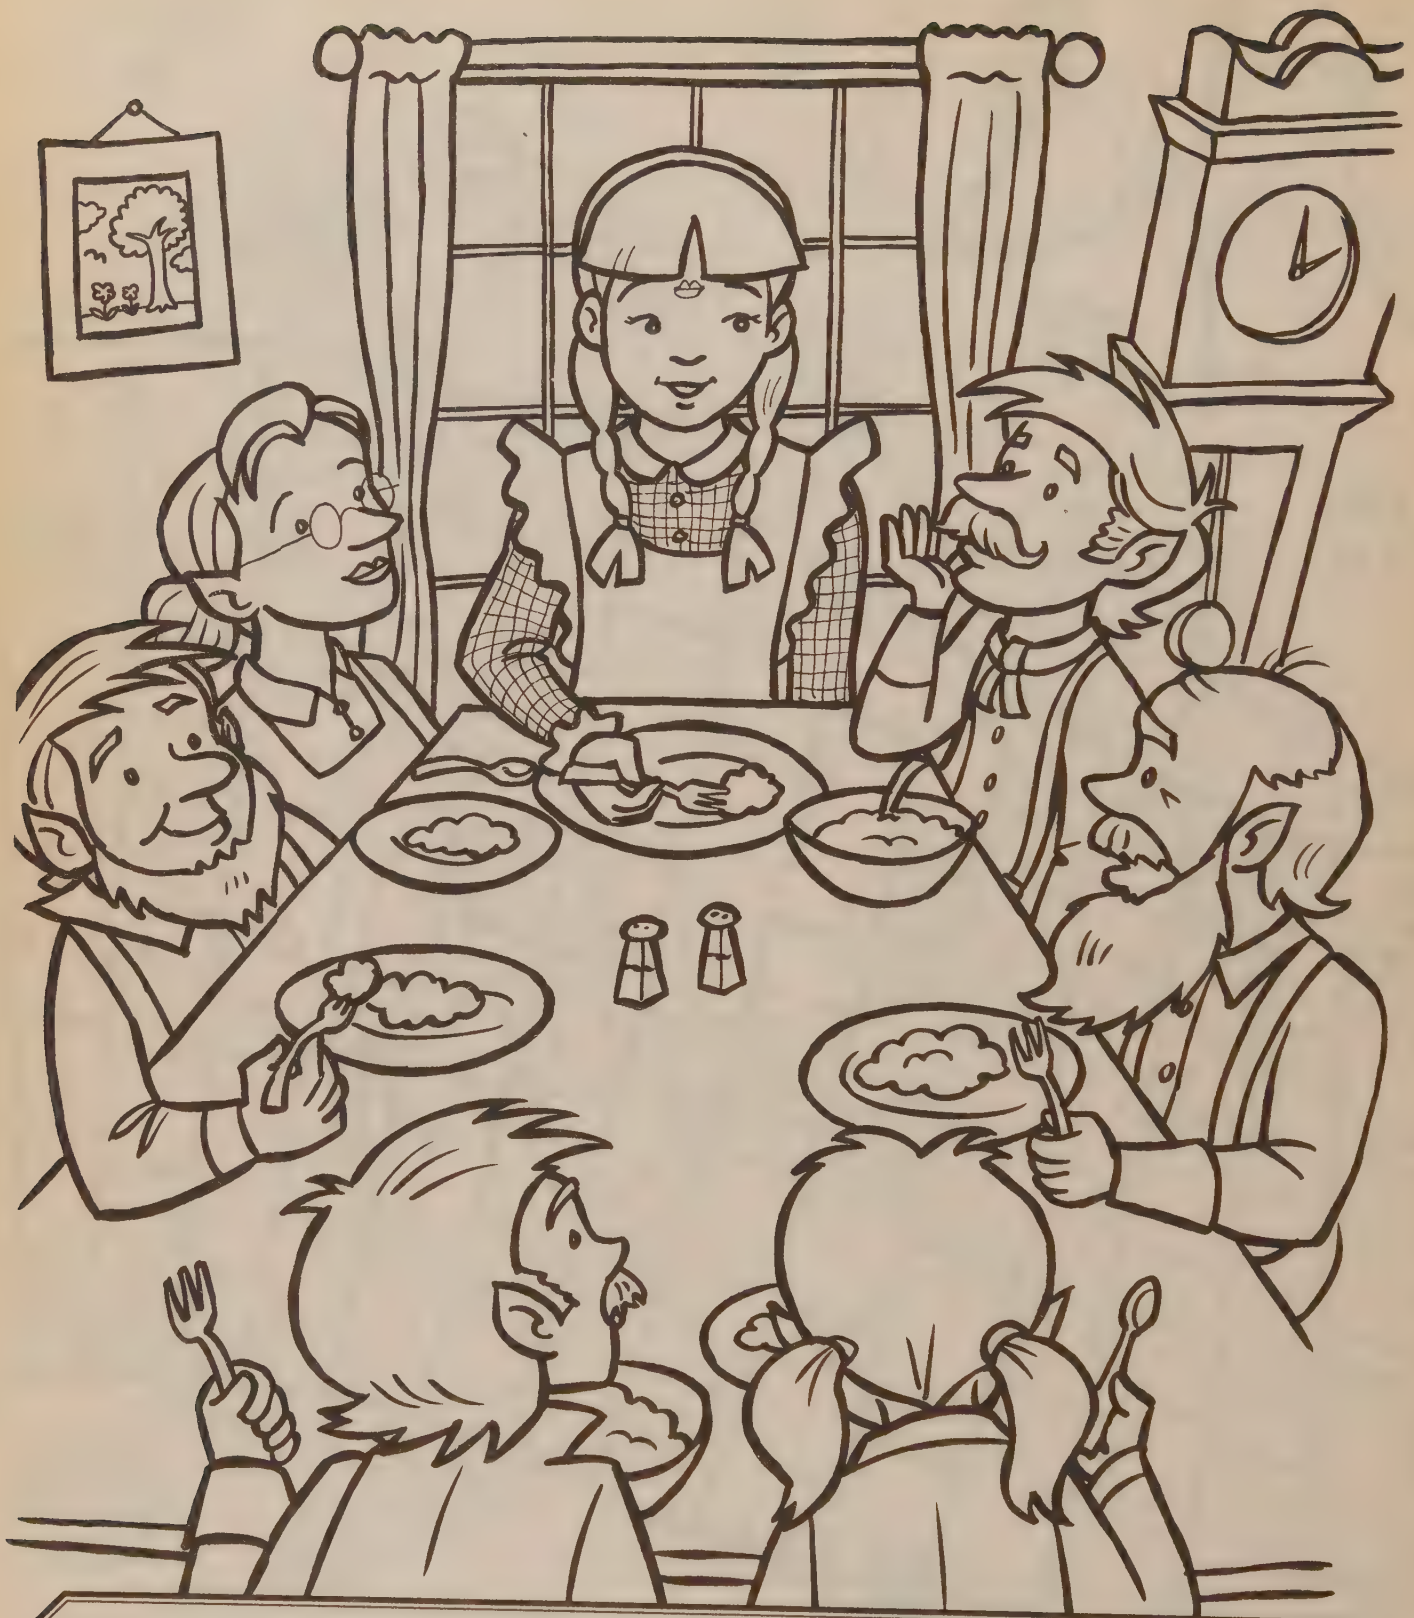

She kissed Dorothy on the forehead, leaving a mark of protection there. Then the Good Witch disappeared.

Dorothy changed her dress and put on the silver shoes.

Then she followed the road of yellow bricks.

After walking for hours, Dorothy saw a little house filled with Munchkins. They asked her to stay for lunch.

After lunch, Dorothy and Toto rested on a fence, near a scarecrow.

"Good afternoon. Would you please help me down?"
the Scarecrow asked.

Dorothy told the Scarecrow about the Wizard.
“Do you think that Oz would give me a brain?” he asked.
Dorothy said he might, so the Scarecrow joined them on their journey.

Soon, they entered a forest. They found a cottage built out of logs in which they could sleep.

In the morning, they went to look for water. They met a woodcutter. He was made of tin! He was so rusty that he could not move!

"Please get my oil can from the cottage. My joints need to be oiled," said the Tin Woodman.

Dorothy ran as fast as she could to get the oil can.

The Tin Woodman could move again! "We are traveling to the Emerald City to see the great Wizard of Oz," said Dorothy. "Come with us!"

The Tin Woodman wanted to ask Oz for a heart, so he agreed. "We are off to see the Wizard of Oz," the friends cheered.

When night came, they heard strange noises coming from the trees. The friends promised to protect each other.

Then they heard a loud roar. A huge lion jumped out of the trees and knocked the Scarecrow to the ground.

The Lion knocked down the Tin Woodman, as well.
Then he tried to gobble up Toto.

“A big beast like you should be ashamed of yourself for scaring a little dog,” Dorothy yelled.

"I'm sorry if I scared you," the Lion cried. "The truth is that I'm a coward. I don't have any courage."

“Perhaps Oz could give you some courage,” the Scarecrow said. The Cowardly Lion wanted to be brave, so he joined the group as they set off for the Emerald City.

They stopped when they heard growling.
“Oh, no! It’s the Kalidahs!” the Cowardly Lion roared.

They were in danger, but the Scarecrow had a great idea.

“Tin Woodman, use your axe to chop down a tree!”
the Scarecrow shouted. The Cowardly
Lion pushed on the tree.

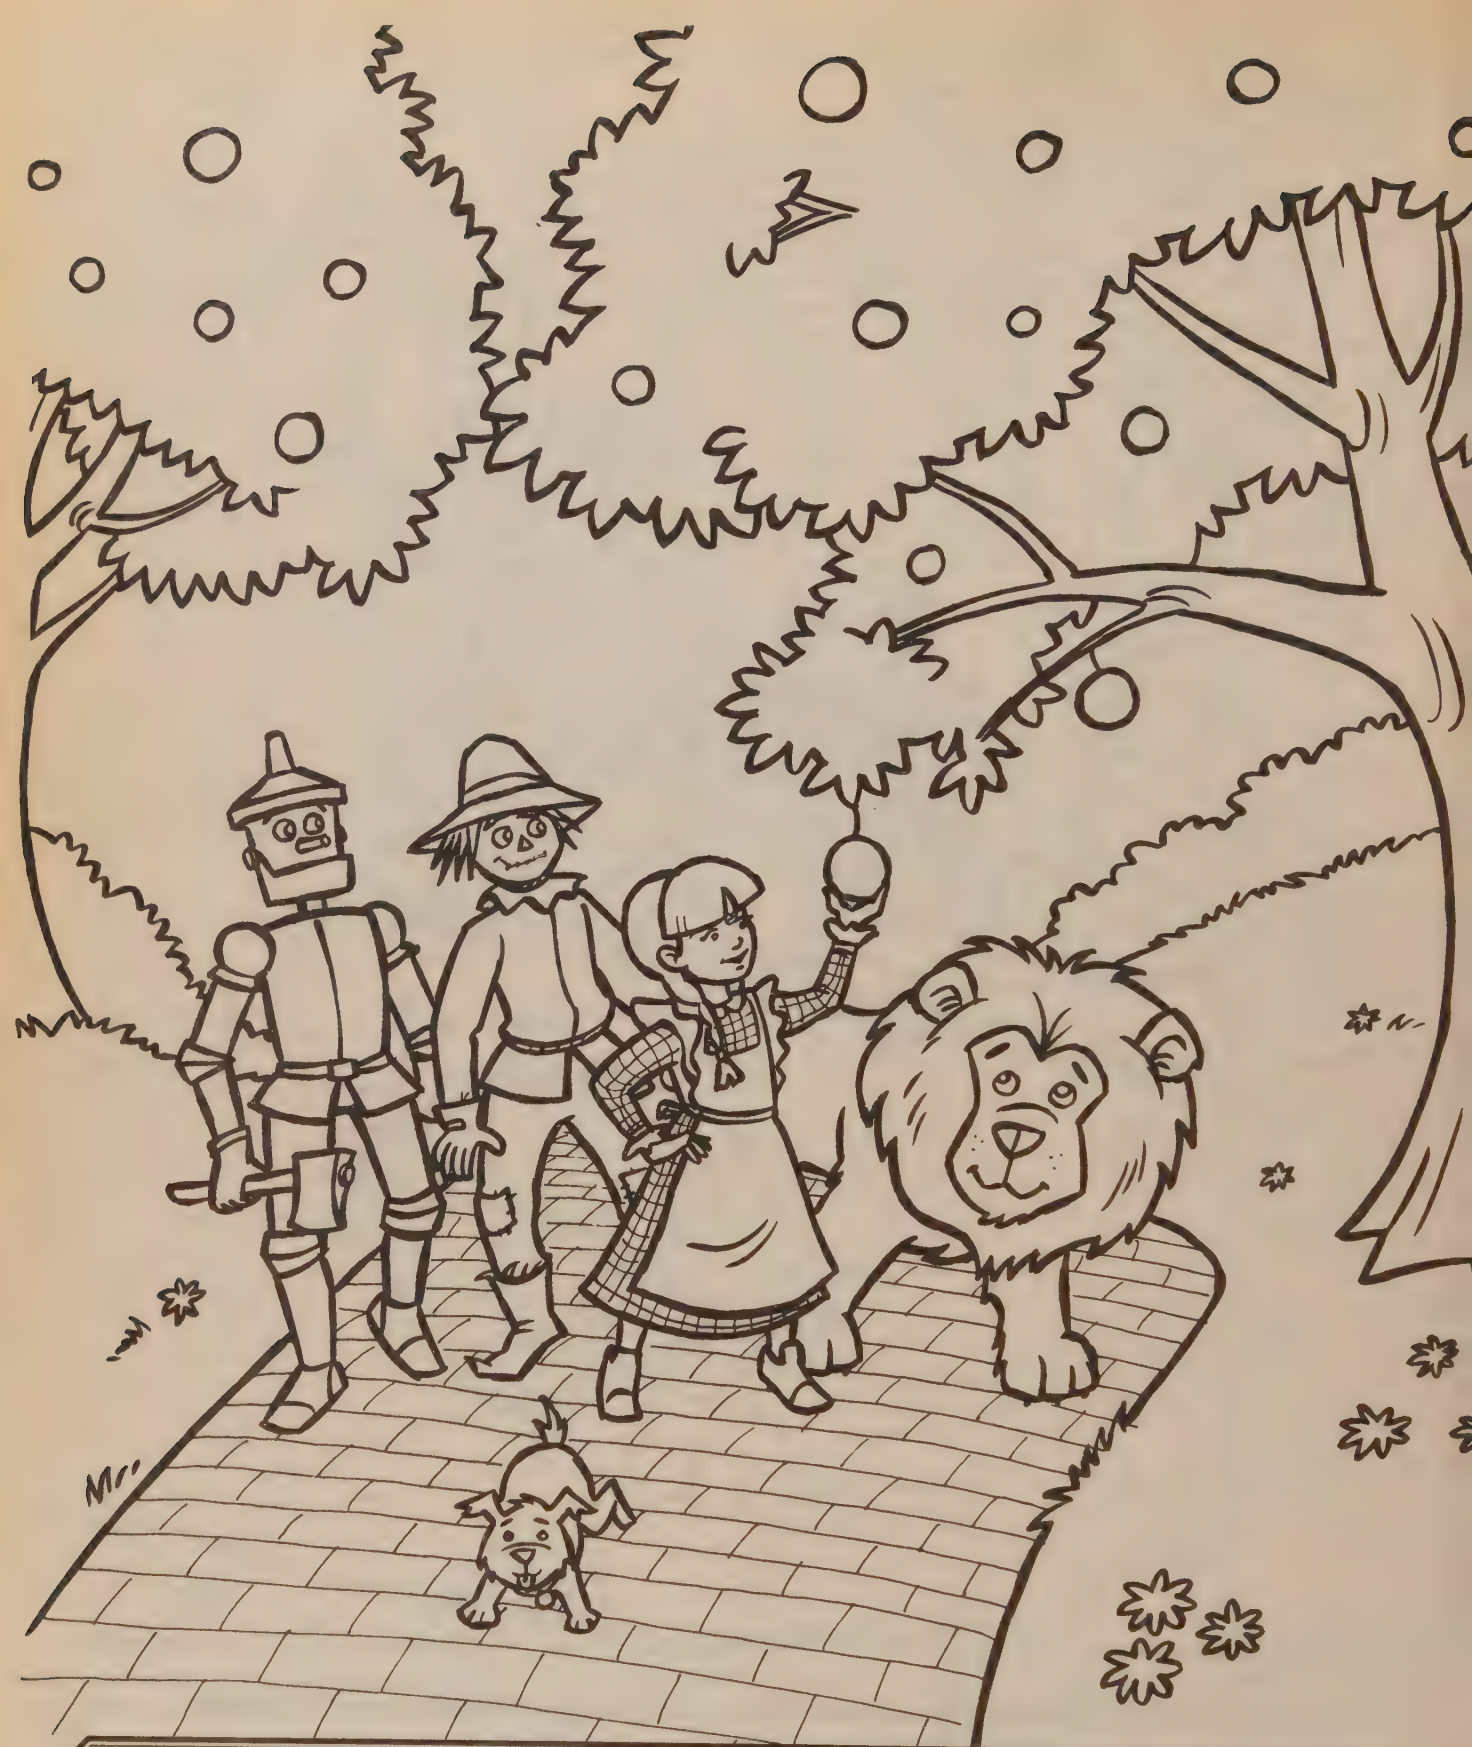

It fell and landed in front of the beasts!
Dorothy and her friends escaped!

The four friends had never been so afraid.
They ran as fast as they could until they reached a river at the end of the forest.

The Tin Woodman made a raft and the Cowardly Lion pulled them across. The water swept them away from the road of yellow bricks and toward the Wicked Witch of the West's lands.

Soon, they found the road of yellow bricks again.
It took them to a beautiful valley with fruit and flowers.

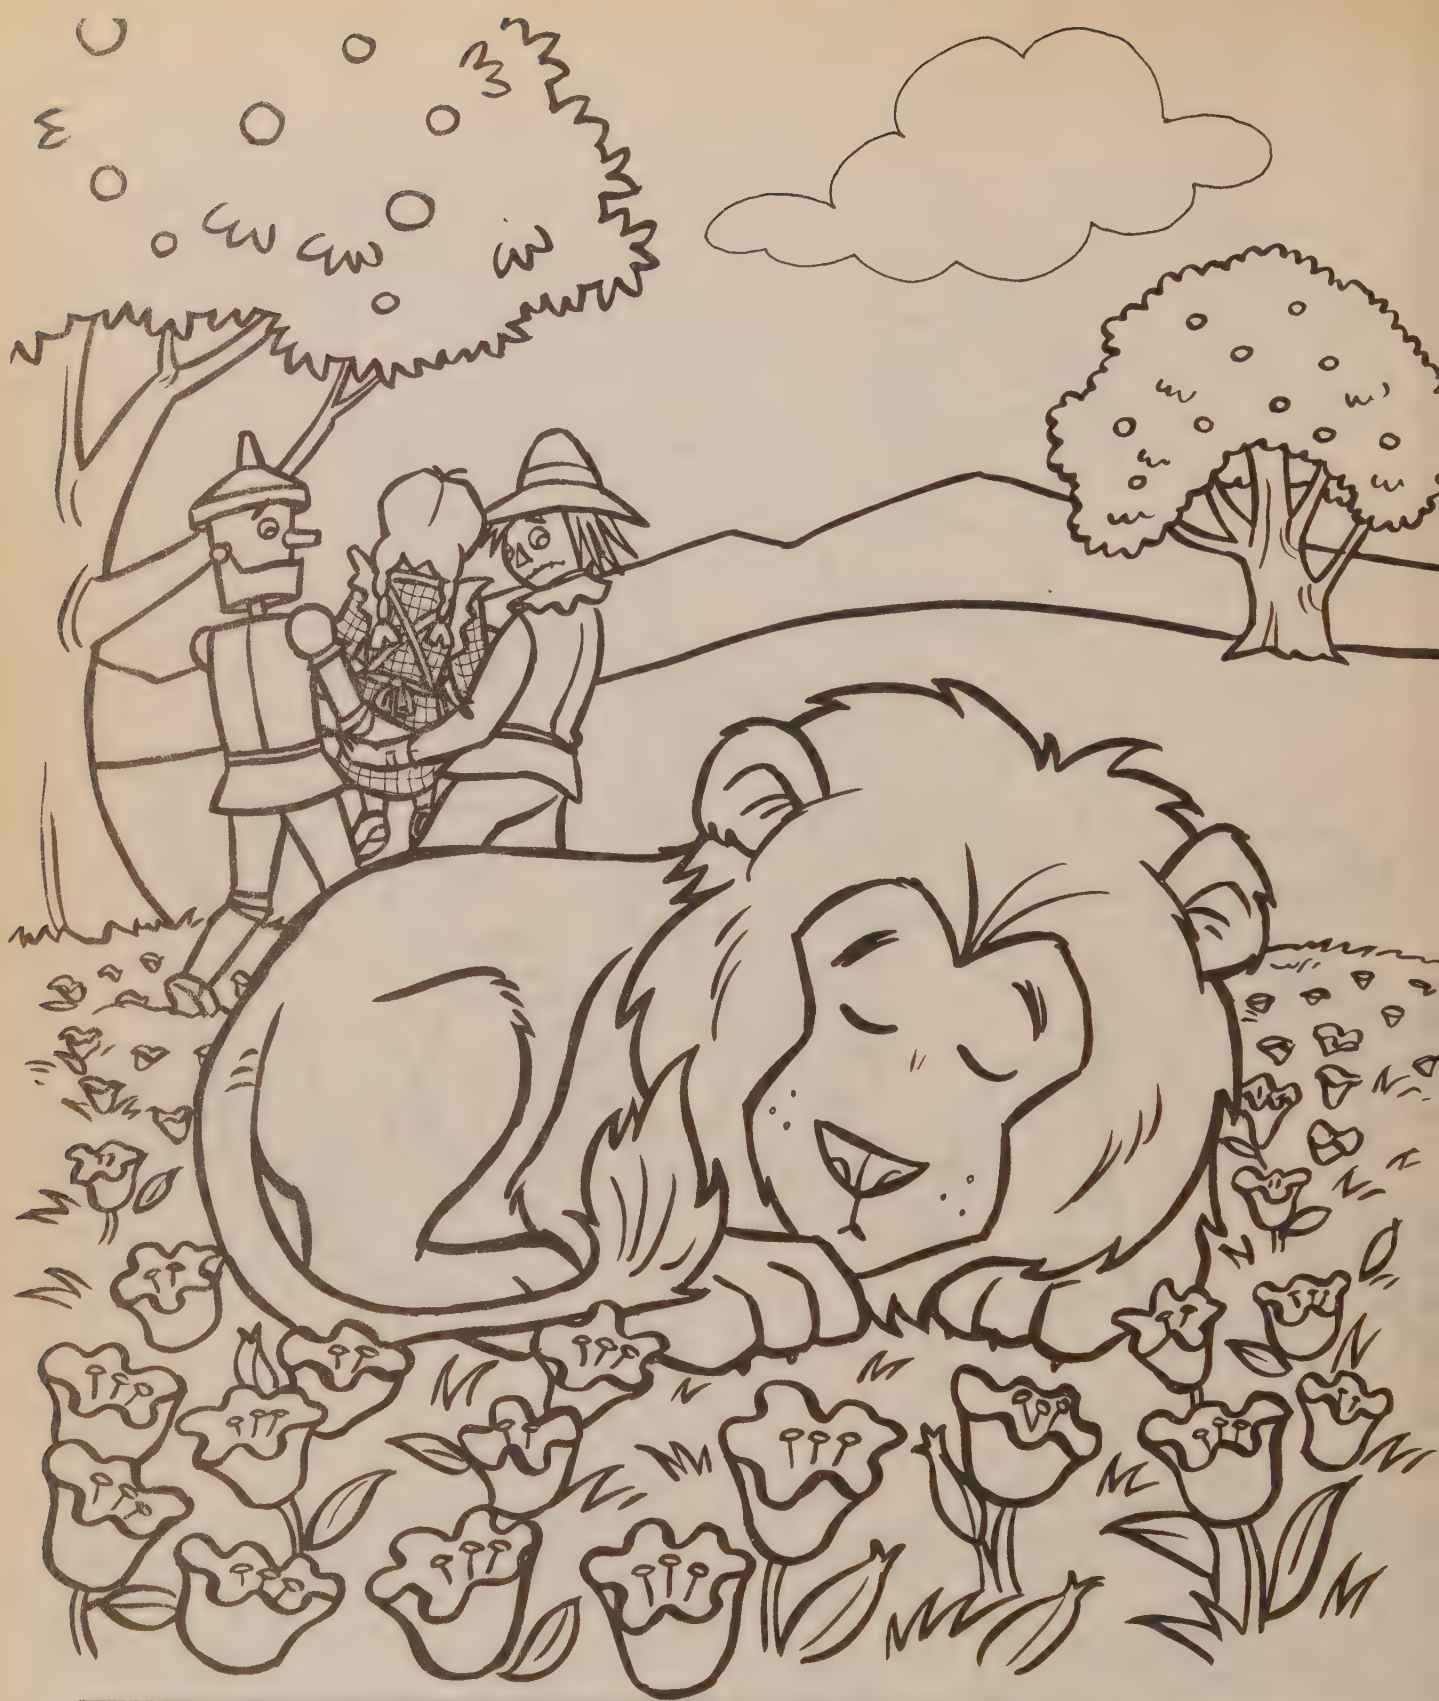

Dorothy saw a meadow filled with red poppies.

The scent of the poppies made everyone sleepy.
The Cowardly Lion yawned.
“You’d better run ahead, Cowardly Lion,” the Scarecrow cried.

The Cowardly Lion ran as fast as he could, but he did not make it past the field. His friends felt sad to leave him there.

As they waited for Dorothy and Toto to wake up, a wildcat ran by. It was chasing the Queen of the Field Mice. The Tin Woodman saved her.

The Queen blew her whistle to call her friends. She wanted to repay the Tin Woodman.

“Could you please help us get the Cowardly Lion out of the poppy field?” the Scarecrow asked.

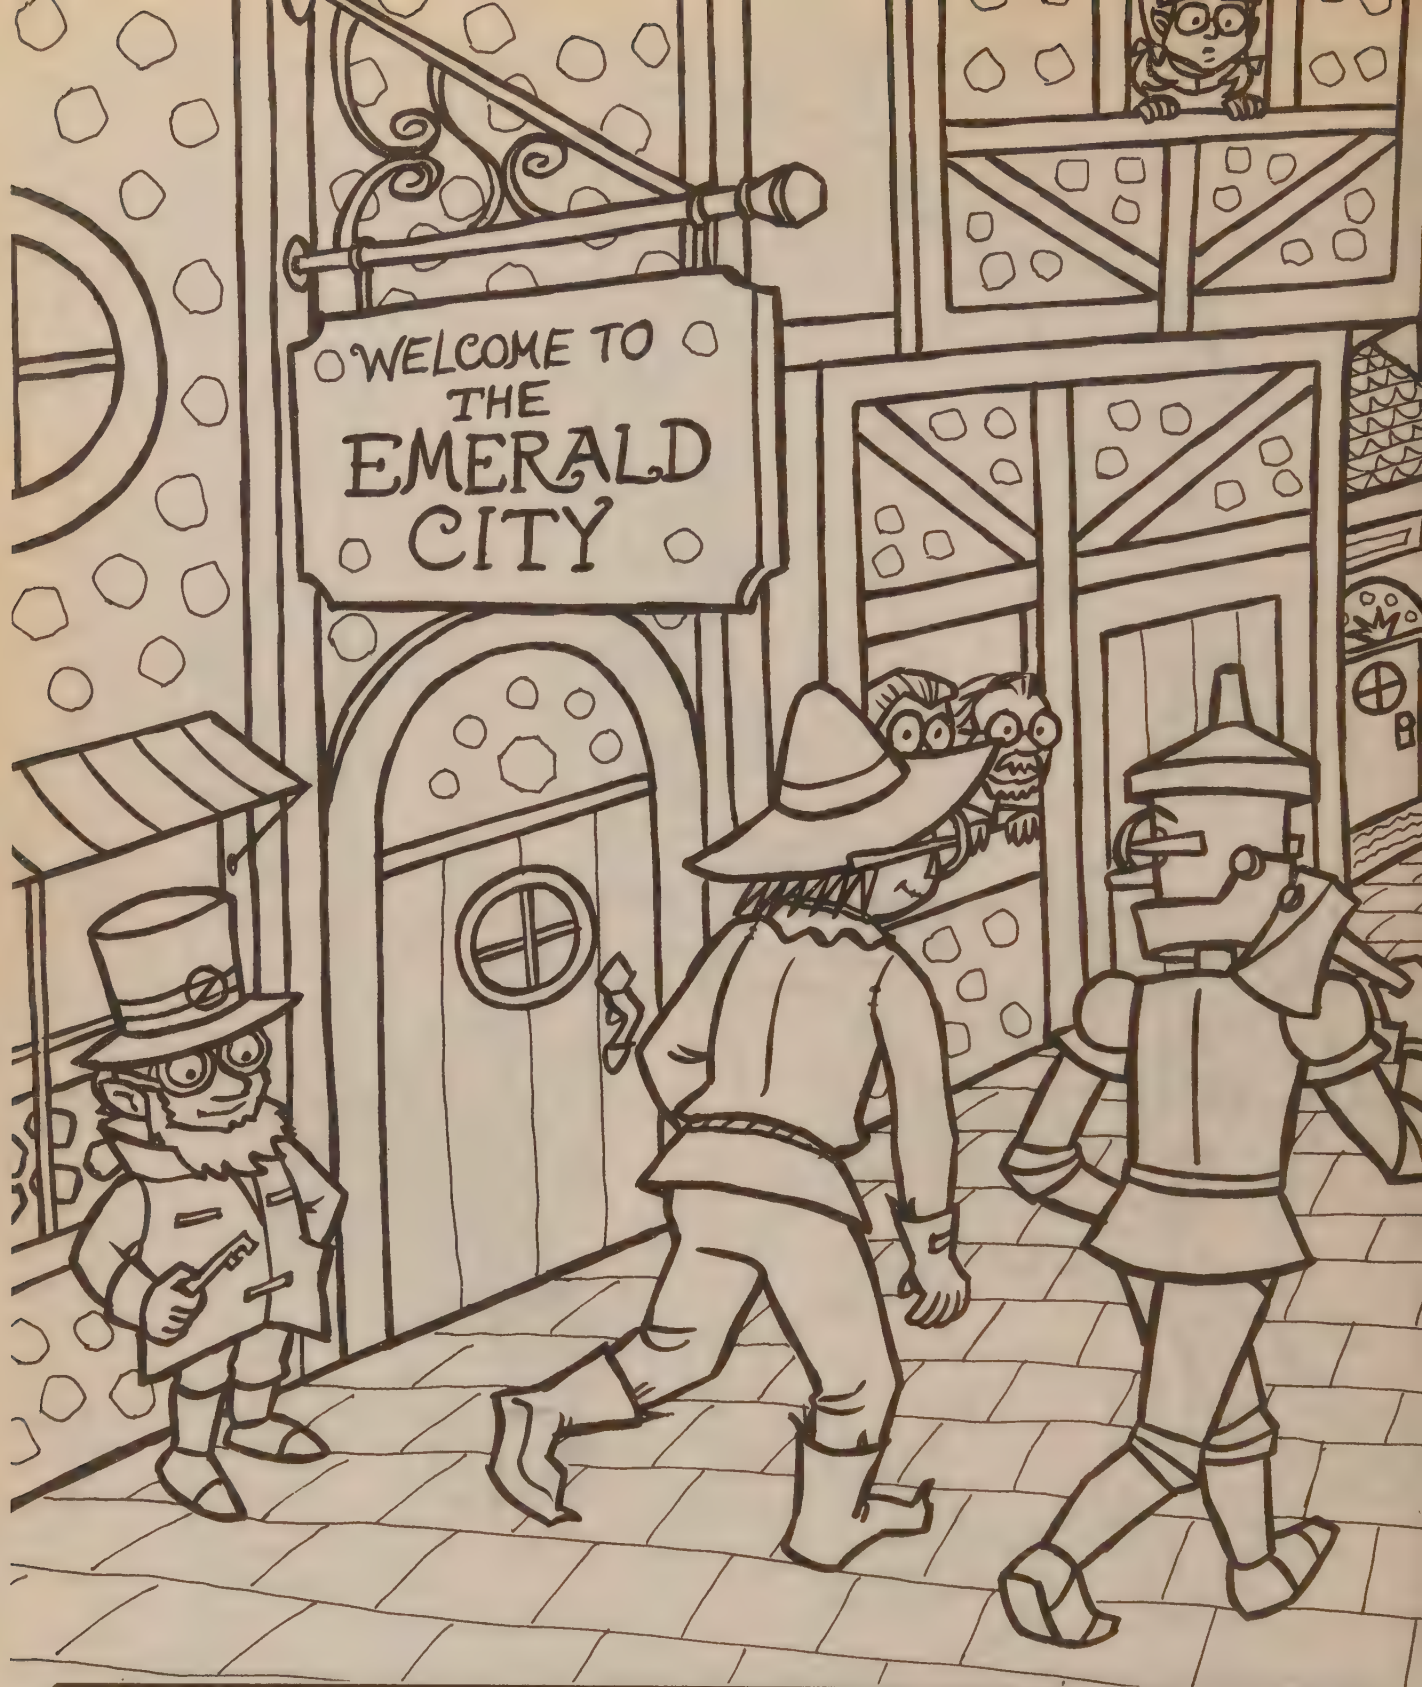

The Tin Woodman made a cart for the Cowardly Lion. The field mice helped to pull it. When they got to the end of the field, Dorothy was awake!

The Queen gave the Tin Woodman her whistle. "Use this if you ever need me again," she said. They thanked her and continued on their journey.

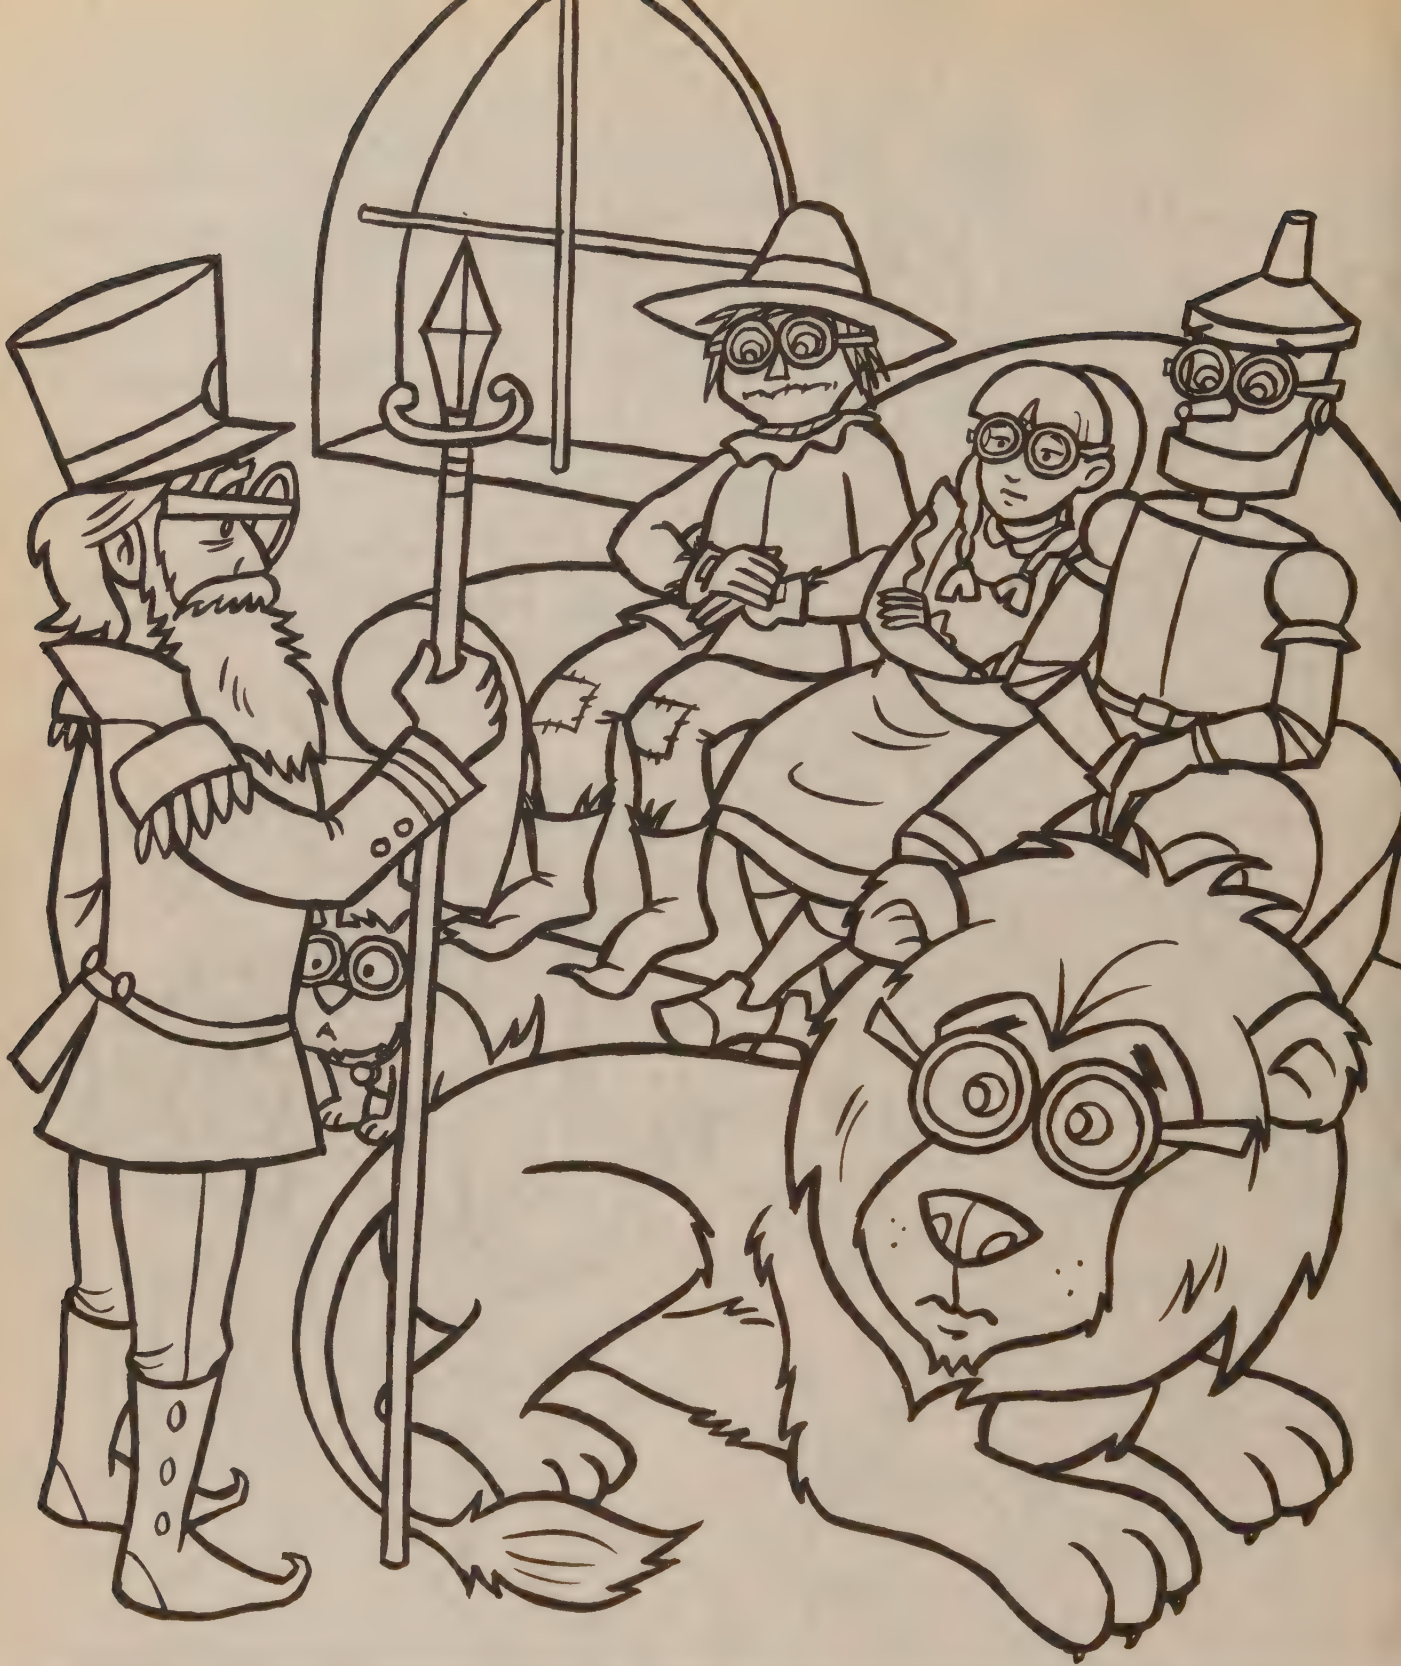

After hours of walking, they reached a huge gate. They rang a bell. The Guardian of the Gates answered the door.

“We want to see the Wizard of Oz,” they told him. The Guardian of the Gates told them to put on special glasses. Everything in Oz looked green.

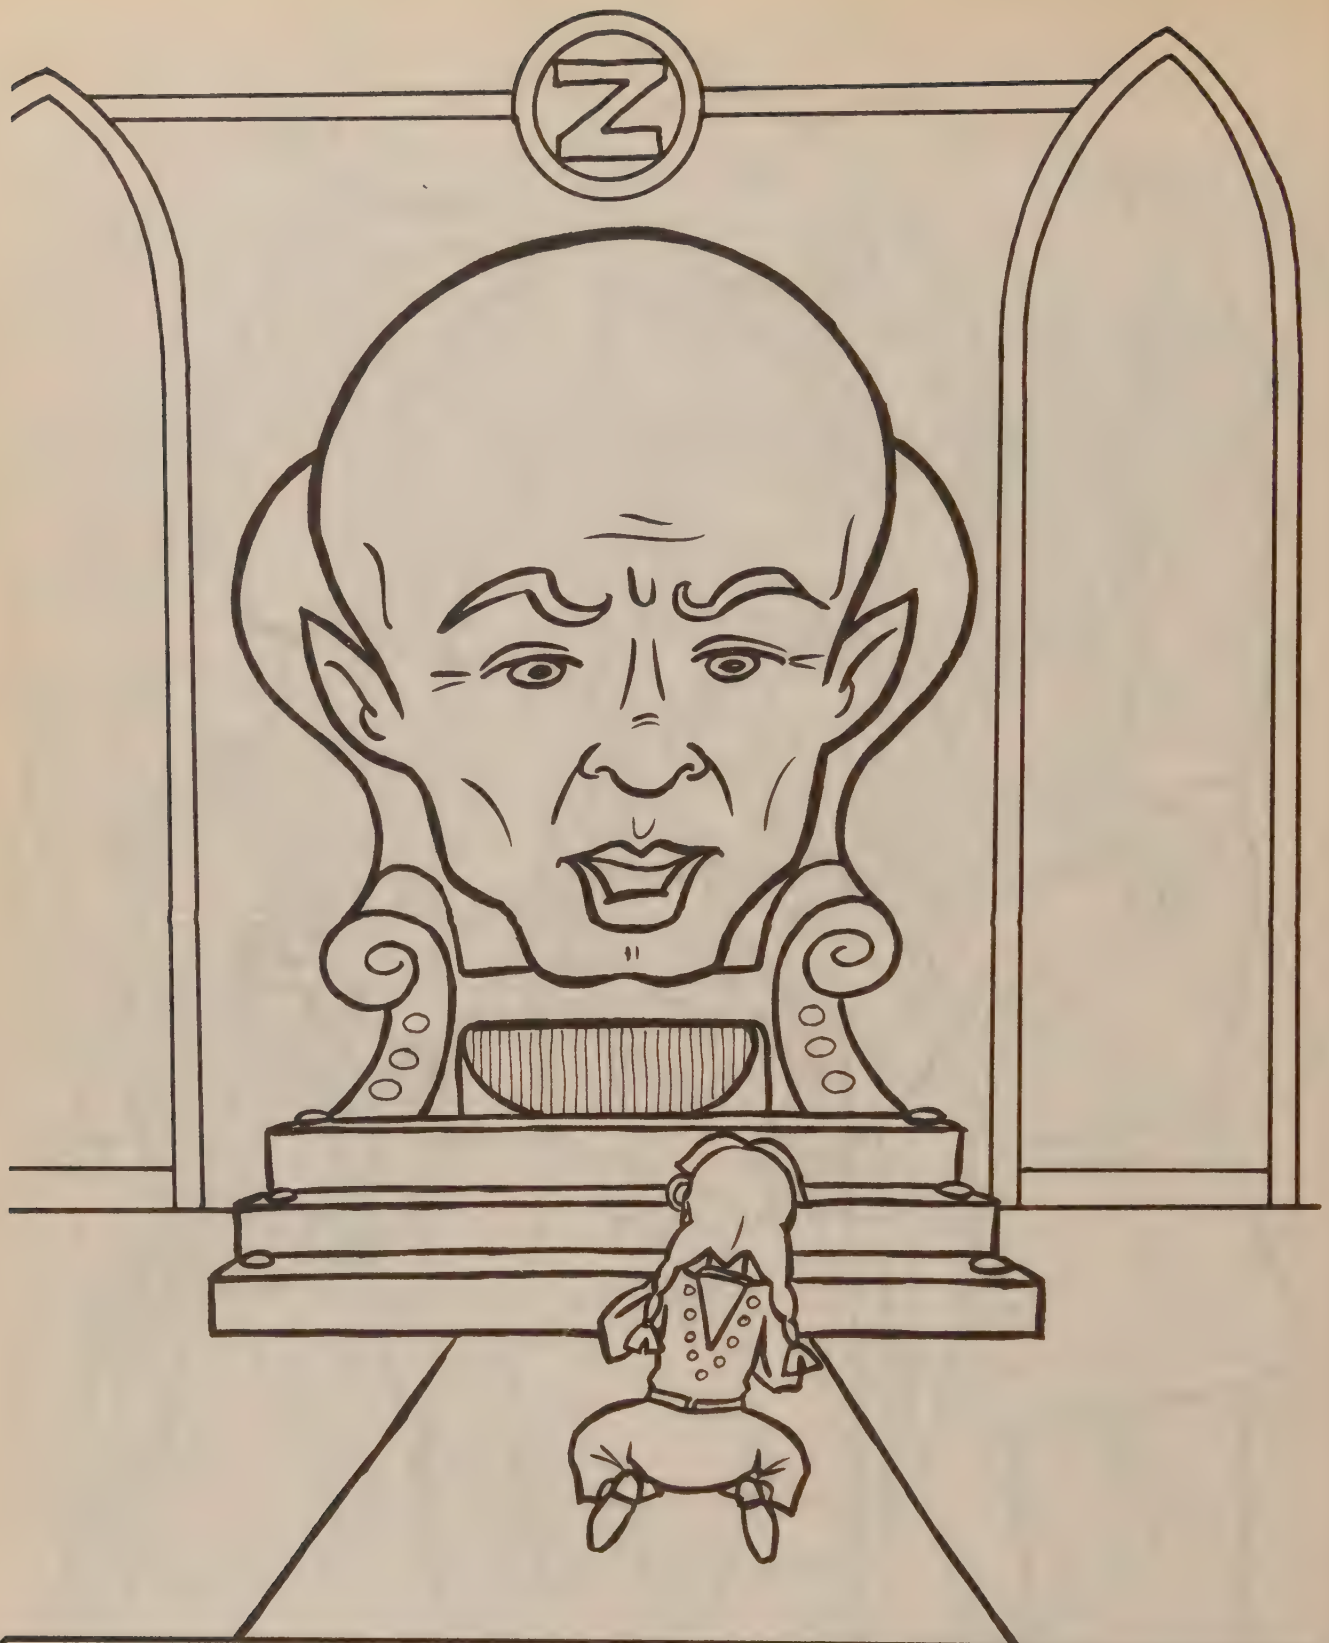

A soldier with green whiskers was waiting for them in front of the palace.

The Guardian of the Gates told one of the soldiers that they wanted to see the Great Oz. "Please step inside the palace. I will tell Oz that you are here," the soldier said.

The soldier came back with a beautiful lady. He said they could see Oz one at a time on different days.
The lady took Dorothy first.

When Dorothy entered Oz's throne room, she saw an enormous head. "Who are you and why do you wish to see me?" a powerful voice asked.

"I am Dorothy. I want to go back to Kansas," she said.
Oz said he would grant her wish if Dorothy destroyed the Wicked Witch of the West.

When the Scarecrow asked Oz for a brain, he saw a beautiful fairy. Oz said his wish would be granted if the Wicked Witch of the West was destroyed.

When the Tin Woodman asked for a heart, he saw a shaggy beast. Oz said his wish would be granted if he helped the Scarecrow and Dorothy destroy the Wicked Witch of the West.

When the Cowardly Lion asked for courage, he saw a flame of fire. Oz said his wish would be granted if he brought proof that the Wicked Witch of the West was gone.

The Guardian of the Gates led the group out of the city.
He pointed in the direction of the kingdom of the Wicked Witch of the West.

The Wicked Witch of the West had one eye only. It was as powerful as a telescope. She watched as the friends found a place to rest.

After a while, she blew her silver whistle. A pack of wolves ran out from her castle to attack Dorothy and her friends!

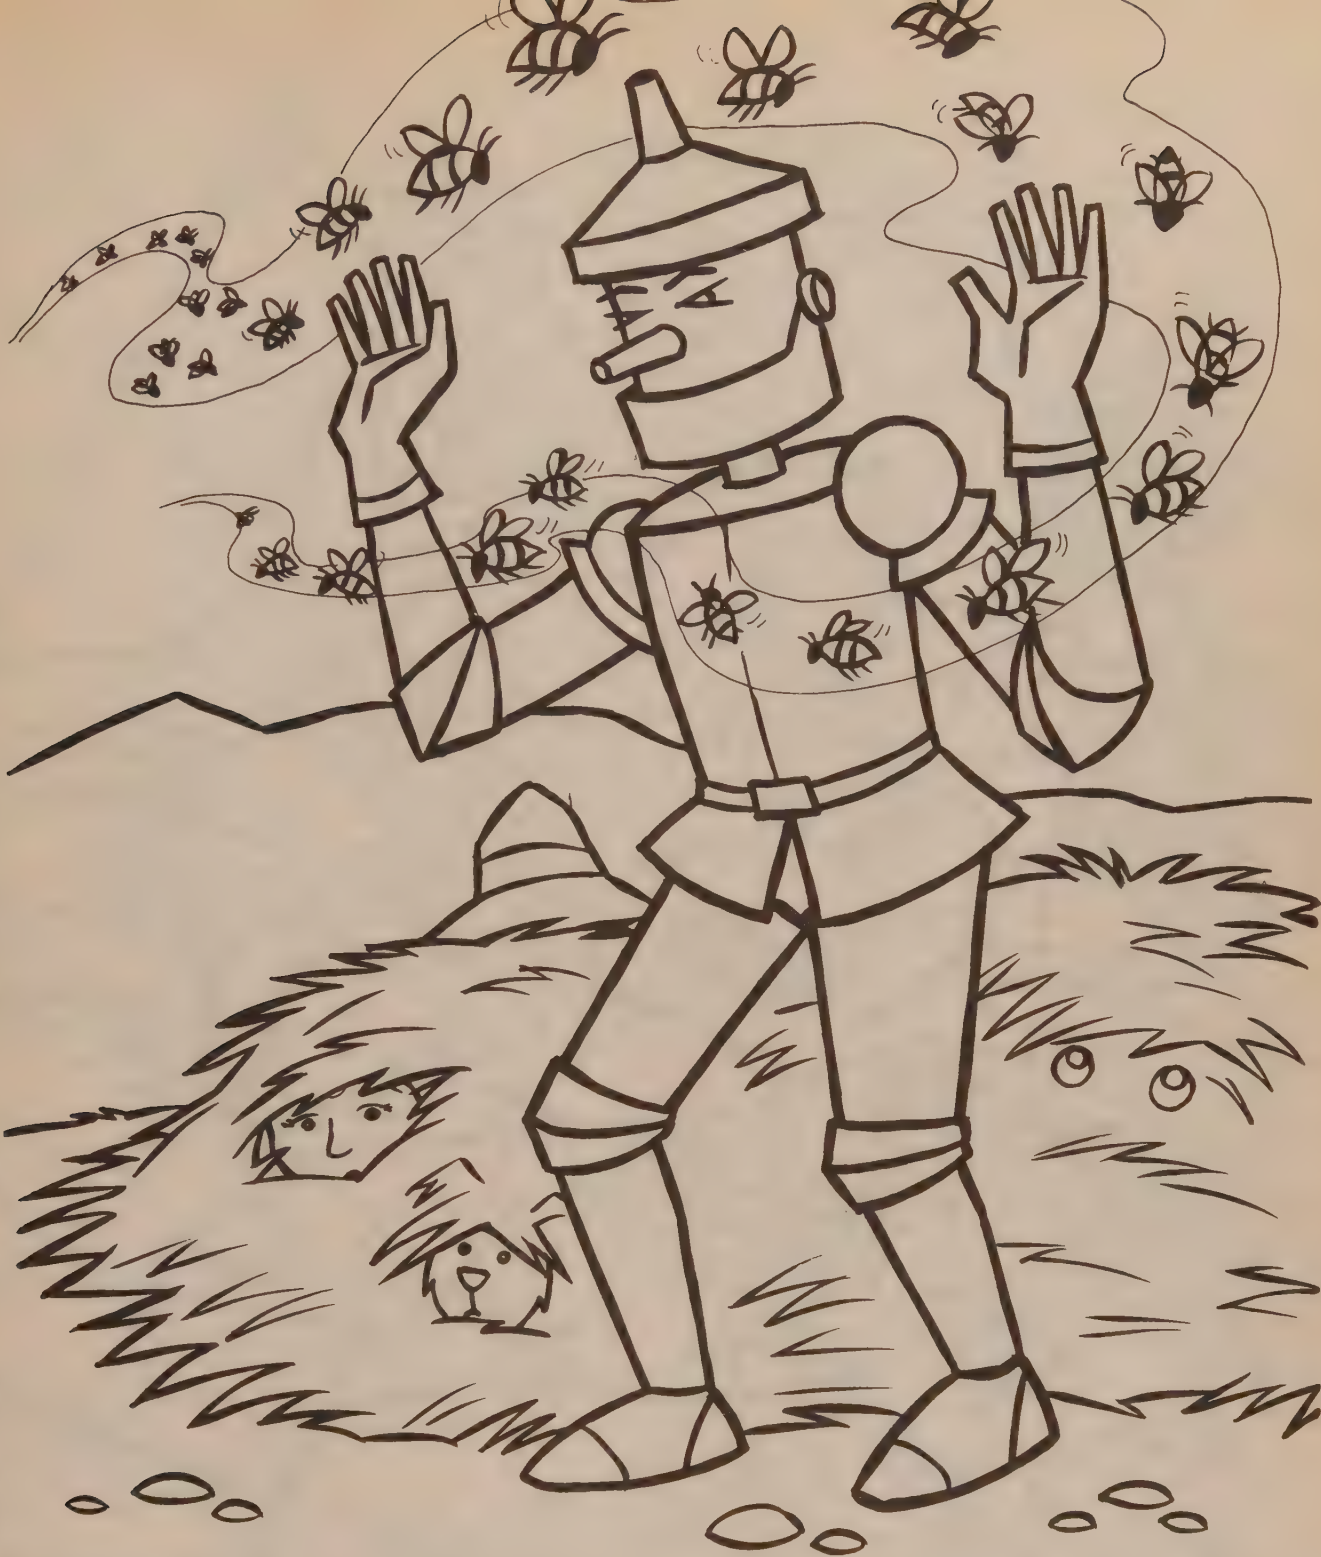

The Tin Woodman fought off every one of the wolves.

The Wicked Witch of the West blew her silver whistle twice and a flock of crows appeared.

The Scarecrow saved his friends from the crows.

The Wicked Witch of the West blew her silver whistle three times and a swarm of bees appeared. Since he was made of tin, the Tin Woodman could not get stung. He saved his friends from the bees.

The Wicked Witch of the West blew her silver whistle four times and her servants, the Winkies, appeared. The Cowardly Lion scared the Winkies away!

The Wicked Witch of the West had a magical Golden Cap. With it, she called the Winged Monkeys.

The Winged Monkeys attacked the Tin Woodman and the Scarecrow. They left them in the woods and took the others back to the Wicked Witch of the West's palace.

The Wicked Witch of the West wanted Dorothy's silver shoes, but Dorothy was protected by the kiss from the Good Witch of the North.

The Wicked Witch of the West locked up the Cowardly Lion. Dorothy snuck out every night to see him. They planned an escape from the palace.

The Wicked Witch of the West put an invisible iron bar in the middle of the kitchen floor. She wanted Dorothy to trip so she could get the silver shoes.

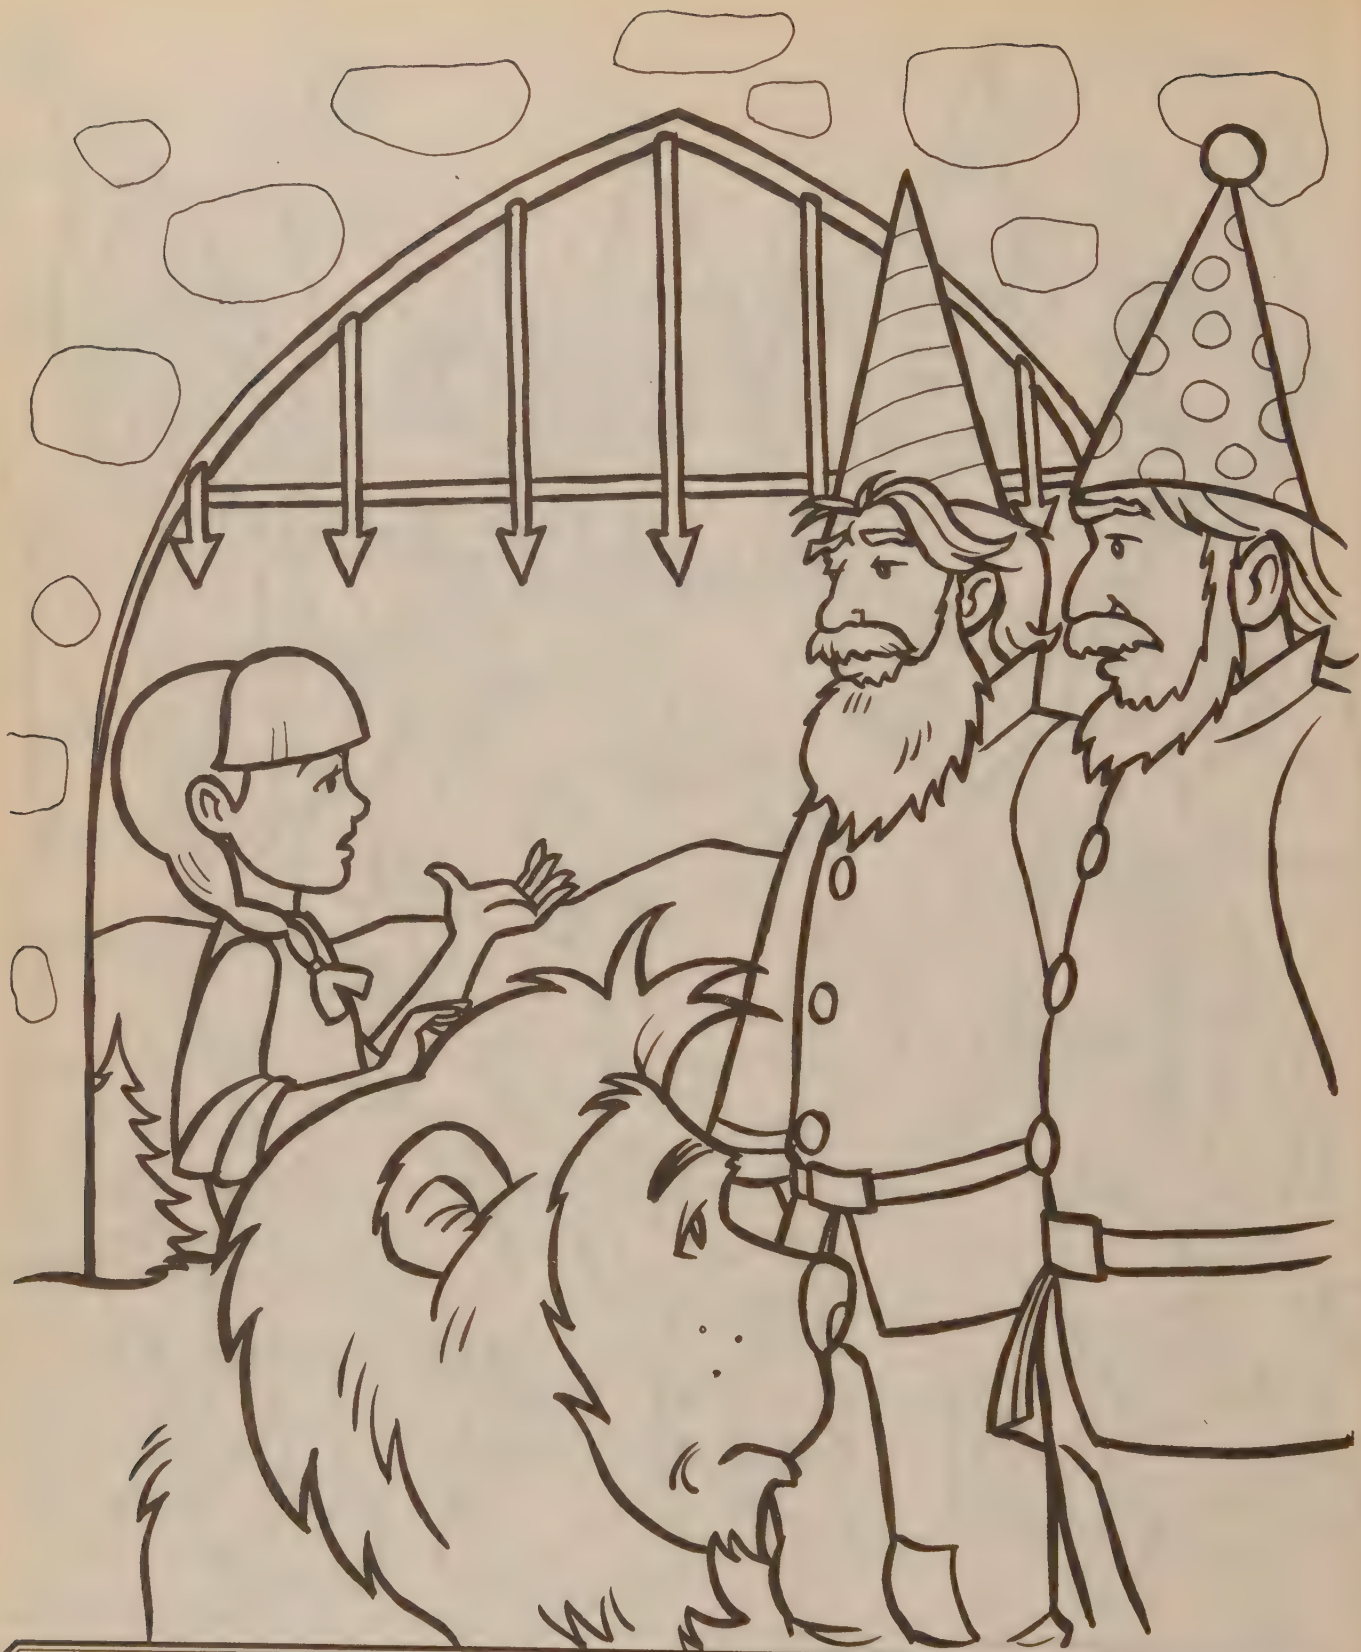

“Give me my shoe,” Dorothy said. When the Wicked Witch of the West refused, Dorothy picked up a bucket and threw the water at the witch.

"I'm melting!" cried the Wicked Witch. She turned into a puddle. Dorothy put her other shoe on, and ran to free the Cowardly Lion.

The Winkies were glad that the Wicked Witch of the West was gone! They celebrated.

The Cowardly Lion and Dorothy missed the Scarecrow and the Tin Woodman. "Will you help us find our friends?" Dorothy asked the Winkies.

They found the Tin Woodman in a rocky valley.
The Winkies repaired him.

The Winkies stuffed the Scarecrow with straw.
Then he was like new!

Before they left, Dorothy took the witch's Golden Cap. It fit perfectly! "Hooray!" Dorothy said. "The Wizard will now grant our wishes!"

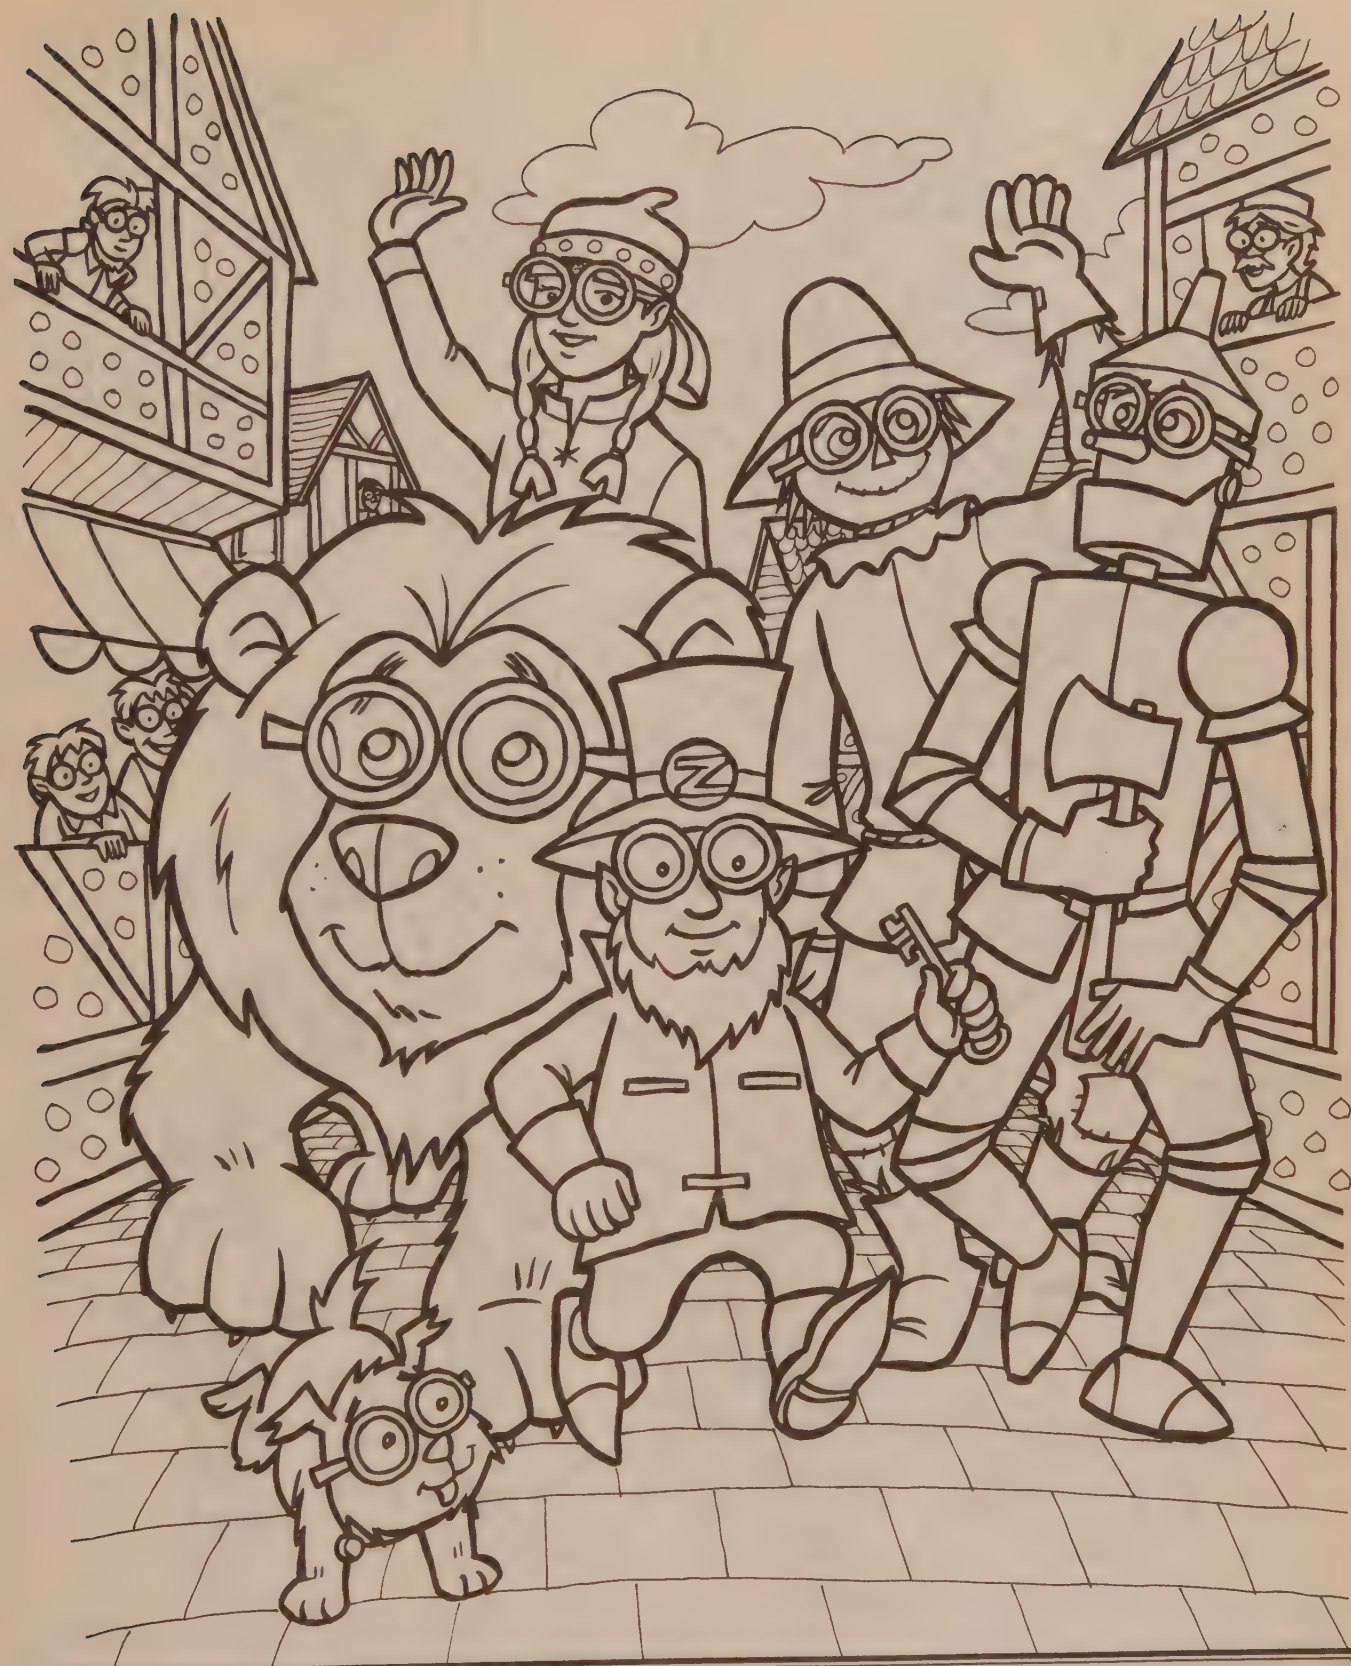

They got lost on the way. Dorothy blew the whistle that the Queen of the Field Mice gave the Tin Woodman. In a few moments, the Queen appeared.

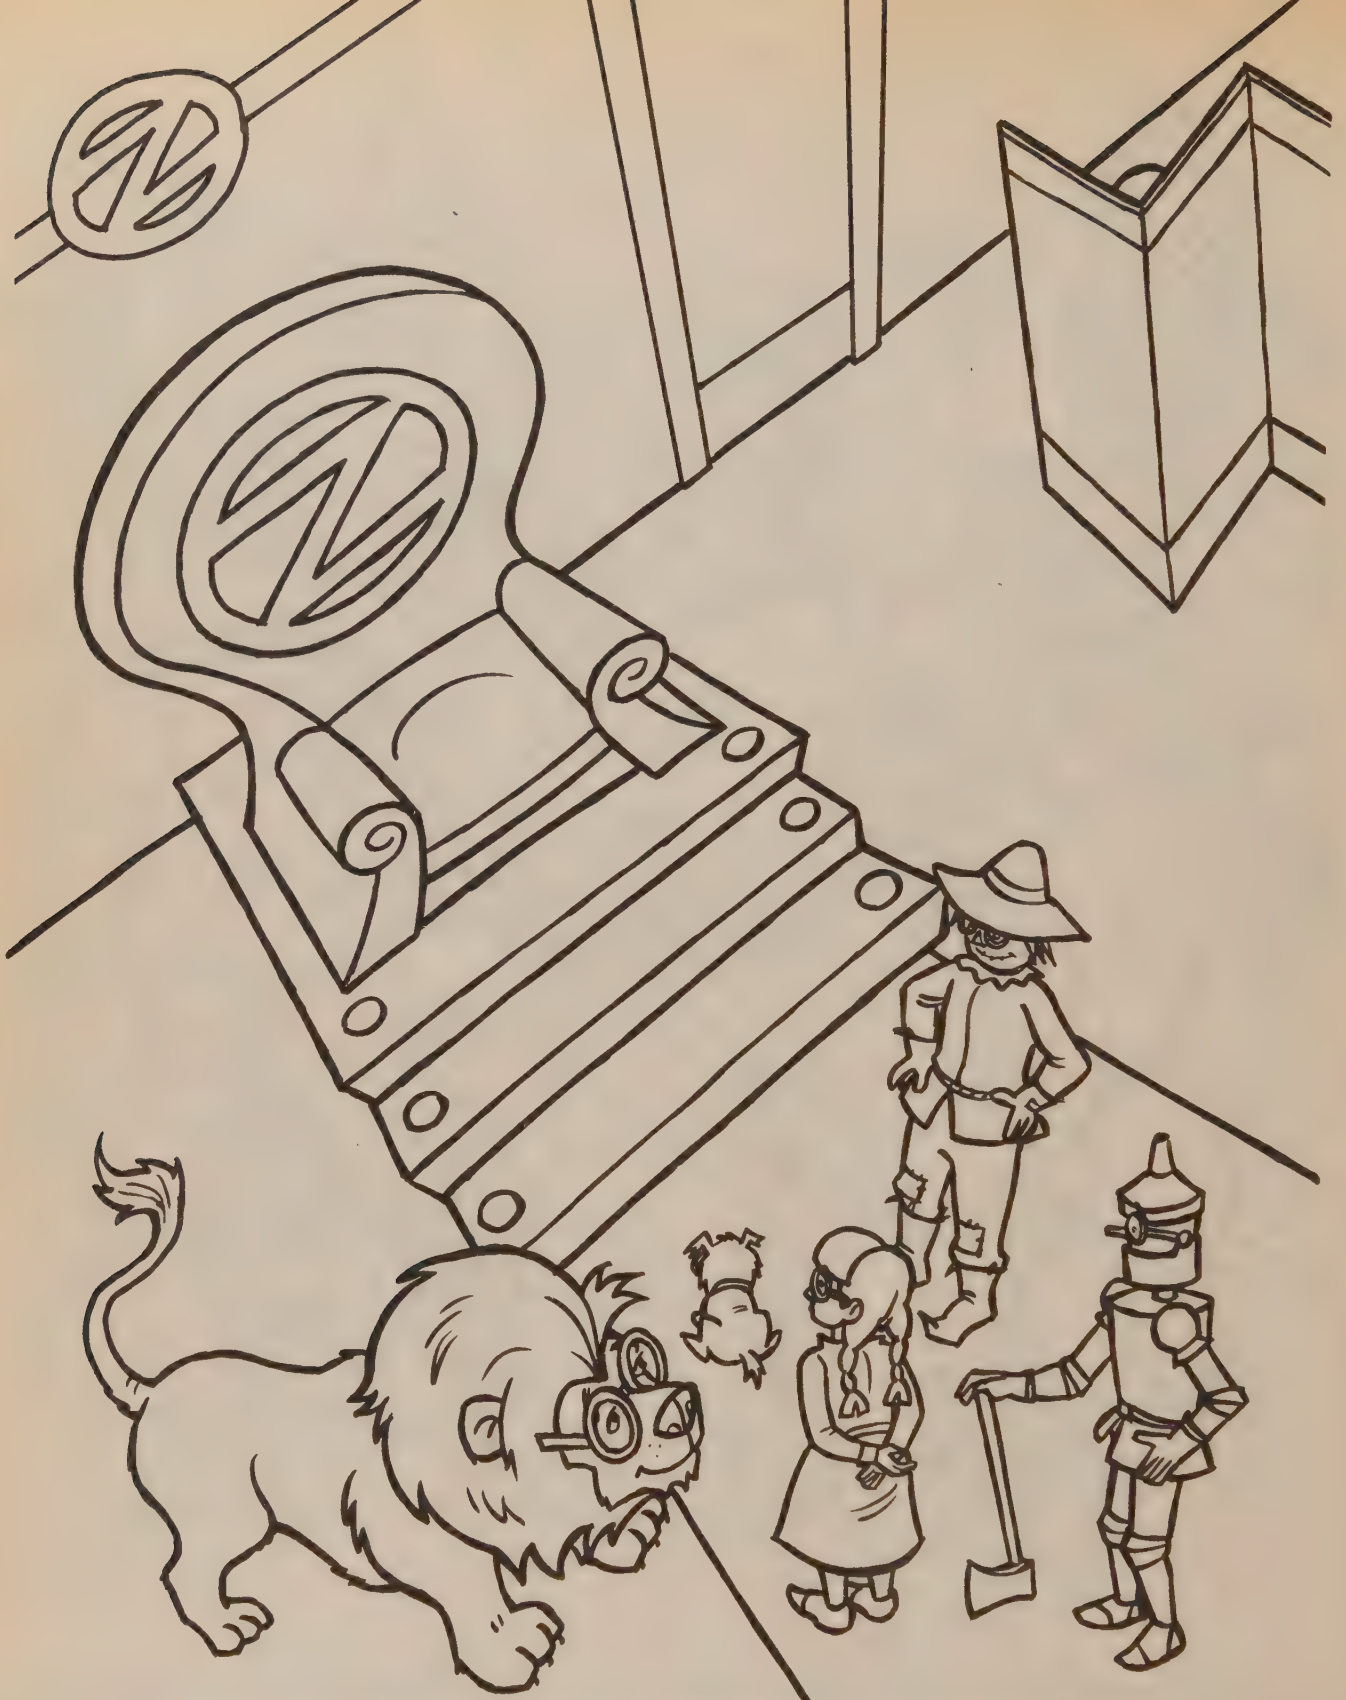

“Use the Golden Cap to get help from the Winged Monkeys,” the Queen said. “They will do anything you command.”

Dorothy wished to get to the Emerald City. "We can fly there in less than an hour," the leader of the Winged Monkeys said.

The Guardian of the Gates gave them their glasses and led them into the Emerald City.

When they finally got to see Oz, they were disappointed.

He was an ordinary man, not a wizard. The Cowardly Lion was so angry, he roared.

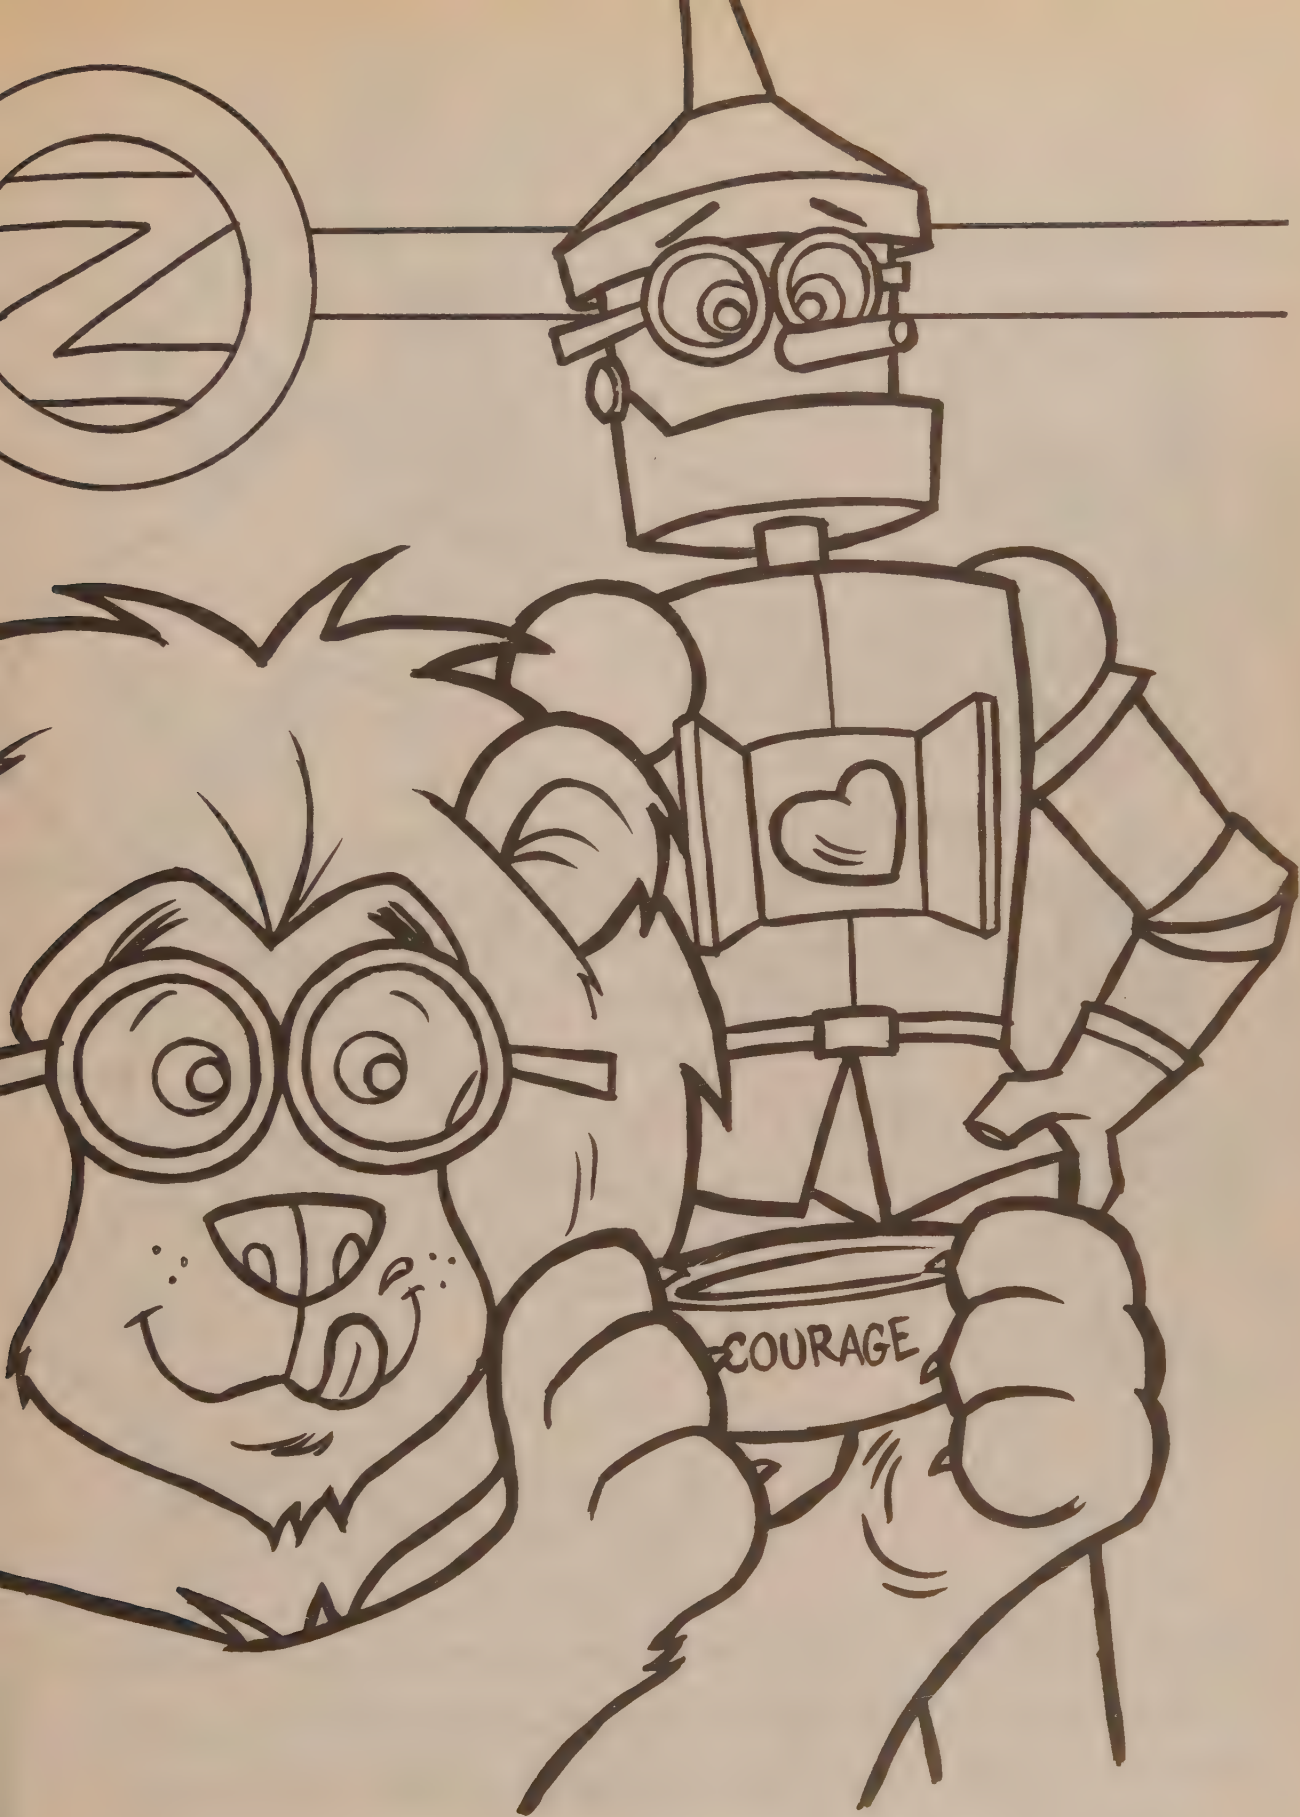

The Wizard had lied to them. "If you do not tell anyone my secret, I promise to grant your wishes," he said.

The next day, the Wizard replaced the straw in the Scarecrow's head with bran. He put a heart inside the Tin Woodman. He gave the Cowardly Lion a bowl of courage.

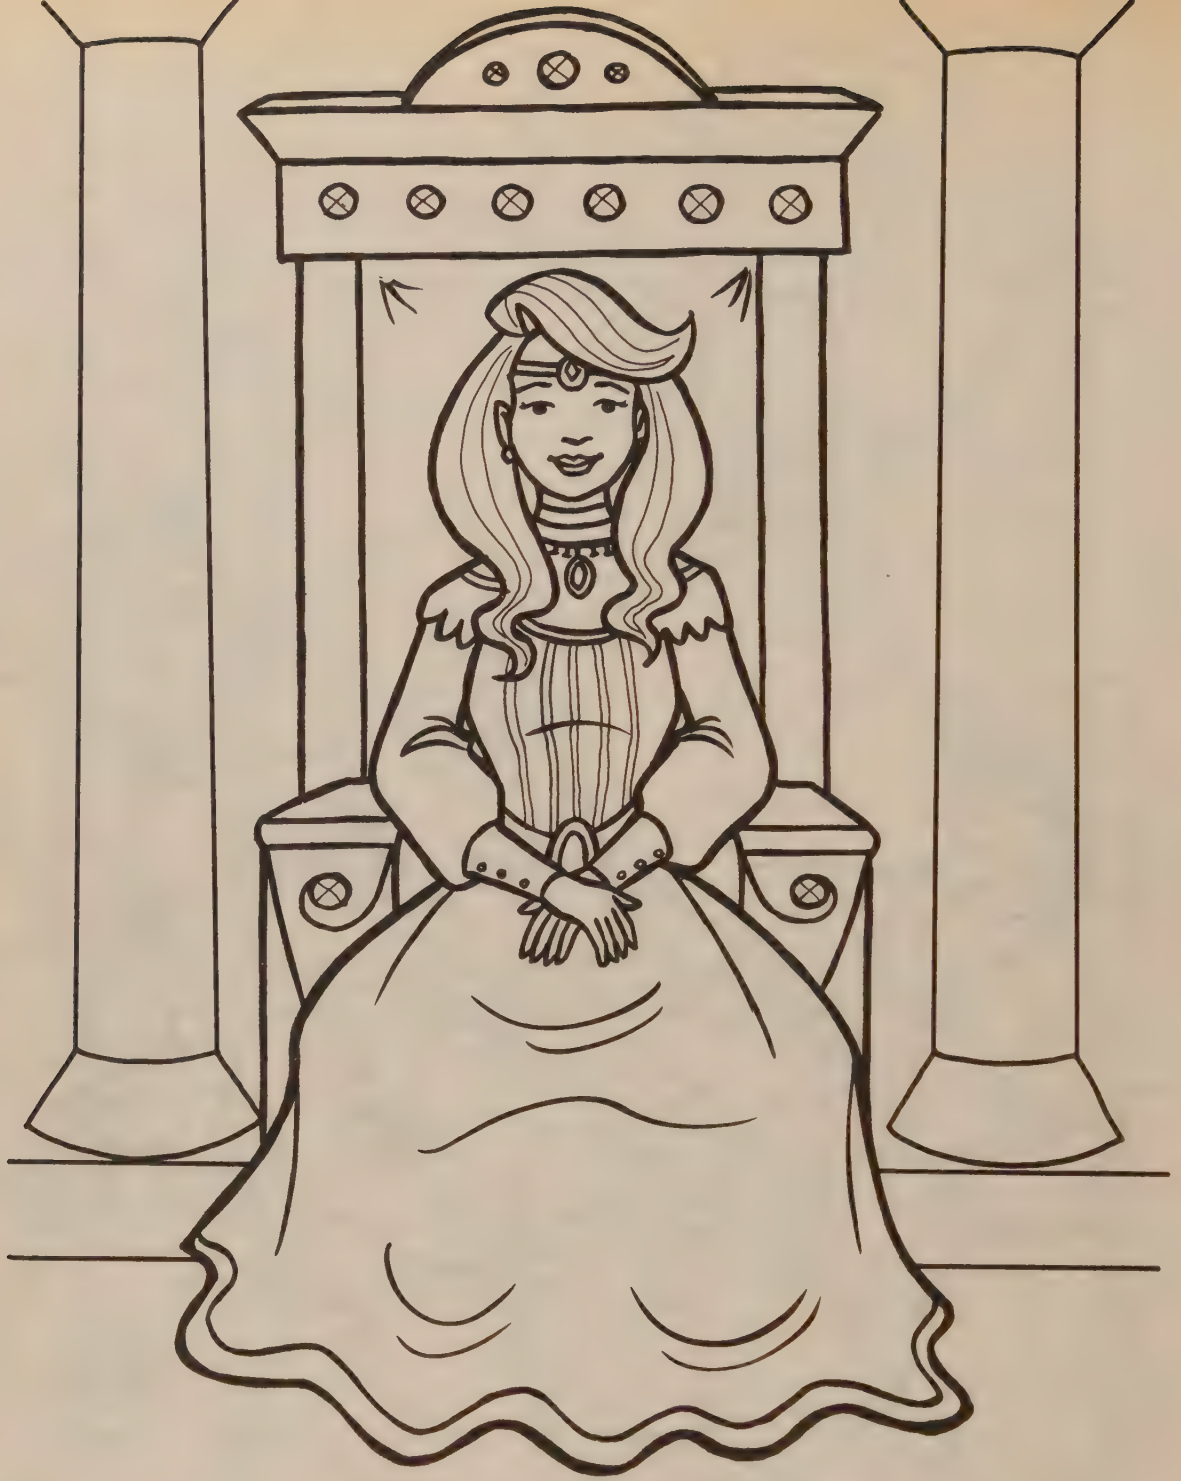

“Do you know how to get Toto and me back to Kansas?” Dorothy asked. Oz told Dorothy he could help her get home. Together, they made a hot air balloon.

When the balloon was about to lift off, Toto ran after a kitten and Dorothy ran after Toto. Before they knew it, the Wizard was up, up, and away.

“I don’t know how to stop the balloon,” yelled Oz.

“You could go to Glinda, the Good Witch of the South,”
said the soldier with the green whiskers.
Her friends offered to go with her on her journey.
At the castle, they met beautiful Glinda.

In exchange for the Golden Cap, Glinda told Dorothy to click her silver shoes three times. Dorothy said good-bye to her dear friends and made a wish to return home.

After a few moments, Dorothy landed on the grass in front of her aunt and uncle's farm in Kansas.

They ran over to Dorothy. She was so happy to be home!

Treasury of Illustrated Classics™

Come over the rainbow for a grand adventure with Dorothy in Oz. This Wizard of Oz Giant Coloring Book retells the story and features Dorothy and her friends—the Scarecrow, the Tin Man, the Cowardly Lion, Glinda and, of course, the Wizard himself—in magical scenes to color.

Look for all of the Treasury of Illustrated Classics™
Giant Coloring Books:

- The Adventures of Pinocchio
- The Adventures of Robin Hood
 - Alice in Wonderland
 - Beauty and the Beast
 - Black Beauty
- Journey to the Center of the Earth
 - The Jungle Book
 - Little Women
 - Peter Pan
 - Treasure Island
- The Wind in the Willows
- The Wizard of Oz

Modern Publishing
A Division of Unisystems, Inc.
New York, New York 10022
Printed in the U.S.A.
Come visit our website at modernpublishing.com

ISBN 0-7666-1330-5

0 30099 49336 0